Woodstock's Hopes High For College

Consolidated News Service
WOODSTOCK — Optimism is running high here today that Carthage college will be relocated in Woodstock as the result of action Wednesday by Illinois United Lutheran leaders.

The leaders approved a resolution calling for a $1 1/4 million fund drive to establish a second campus in northern Illinois. The measure was approved at a convention in DeCATUR of the Illinois Synod of the United Lutheran church in America.

A decision on the site of the relocation is expected to be reached June 3 when the college board of trustees meets.

Numerous meetings and surveys have been made here to determine the financial possibilities of relocating the institution in Woodstock.

Under the resolution, the second campus would be set up in an area bounded by Milwaukee, Rockford and Chicago. A synod spokesman said this would be the first step in a long-range plan to relocate the entire school.

House Passes Bill

From Our Springfield Bureau
SPRINGFIELD — A bill requiring real estate brokers to maintain special accounts for the funds of clients Wednesday passed the house by a 157 to 3 vote.

While the bill already has passed the senate it will be returned to the upper chamber for concurrence on house amendments.

Representative Walter J. Reum, Oak Park Republican and house sponsor of the bill, said the measure provides additional safeguards for the clients of real estate brokers. Reum said the only existing safeguard is a requirement that a broker does not "co-mingle" personal funds with those of a client.

Inspections Mired

Today's rainy weather halted home fire safety inspection by Rockford firemen after only one day of action.

The inspection program was interrupted about two weeks ago so firemen could do their "spring housecleaning" at their stations. At the time, home inspections were about half completed.

The inspections resumed Wednesday.

Research Proved

Research proved the ratio of car owners who had medium-priced cars increased from 20 per cent in 1935 to more than 60 per cent in 1956.

Population growth, expanding purchasing power and the increase of two-car families coupled with the five rival makes in the medium-priced field led to the decision Ford's new line would be a Mercury-class car.

Establishing a New Line

In starting a new line, many millions of dollars are spent before the first car is sold, Manning said. Even for the gigantic Ford company, which spent $412 million between 1947 and 1957, the project is a huge one.

In establishing the Edsel set aside $250 million. This can be compared with the $26 million that was behind the ill-fated Tucker automobile.

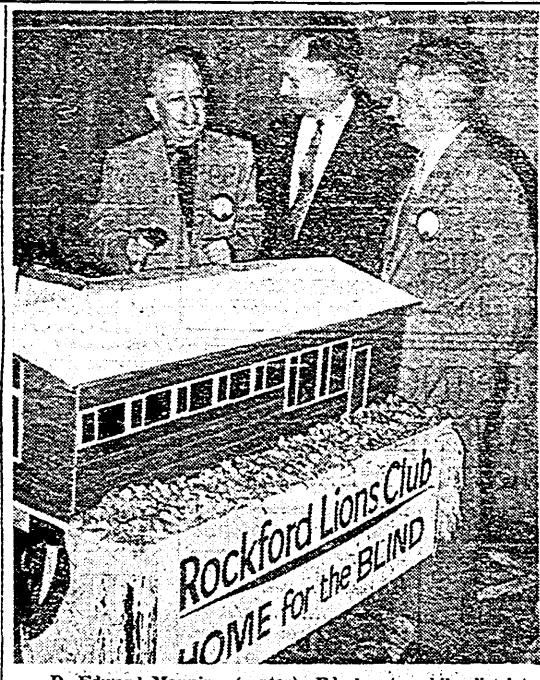

Scheduled for unveiling in the early fall, the Edsel is on the testing grounds now. Within months the four new Edsel series, Ranger, Pacer, Corsair and Citation, will take their places with the Ford, Mercury, and Lincoln.

Edsel No Gamble, Ford Officer Says

Considering the more than 2,200 different cars that have appeared on the market since the invention of the first automobile back in the '90's, it would seem to be taking quite a gamble to bring out a completely new line.

However, Ford Motor company, parent firm of the new Edsel division, doesn't feel that way, according to an official of the new division who addressed the Rockford Lions club.

D. Edward Manning, district sales manager of Edsel division of the Ford Motor company, named the competition in the medium-price range as the main reason Ford is bringing out the new car.

Manning said the Edsel will come in four series and 18 body types and will be "within" the Mercury price range.

Manning admitted Ford had learned a few things from General Motors and Chrysler Corporation, the other two leading automobile manufacturers. GM has three cars, Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick, in the medium-price range; Chrysler has two, Dodge and DeSoto; while for many years Ford has had only the Mercury.

Research proved the ratio of car owners who had medium-priced cars increased from 20 per cent in 1935 to more than 60 per cent in 1956.

Population growth, expanding purchasing power and the increase of two-car families coupled with the five rival makes in the medium-priced field led to the decision Ford's new line would be a Mercury-class car.

Stock Prices Drift Lower

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Prices drifted lower early this afternoon as the stock market continued to relax after its recent surge to new 1957 highs.

Pivotal issues were off from fractions to two points. There was a scattering of selected gainers.

The decline was general. Only the utilities showed a slight edge to the upside.

The market was still hovering in the vicinity of the new 1957 highs it established within the last couple weeks.

Lower earnings by a number of railroads, layoffs announced for the Frigidaire division of General Motors and a decline in orders for machine tool makers were dampers on investor sentiment.

Losses among the major steels, motors, rails and chemicals were mainly fractional.

Lukens Steel jumped ahead more than a point as did Eastman Kodak. Du Pont was off around two for a while but cut its loss to a fraction.

Most of the major oils sagged slightly but Getty Oil rose about two and Gulf Oil took a loss of more than a point.

U. S. government bonds eased.

House Proves Trap For Curious Squirrel

GLASGOW, Ky. (U.P.) — A wandering squirrel tried to convert E. P. Ebert's home into a king-size cage while he was away.

Returning from vacation, Ebert found the squirrel had entered the house and caused considerable damage trying to get out again. Fact is, he died trying.

His body was found while Ebert tolerated the damage — a broken lamp, chewed-up Venetian blinds, and 14 window pane frames, bitten off right down to the glass.

Mrs. Robinson was one of three library board appointees confirmed Monday night for three year terms.

Driver Talks; Hot Water Level Rises

Charles W. Hill, 21-year-old machine operator whose banged-up 1947 model car was halted in the 500 block 7th st. at 1:10 a.m. today, fast-talked himself into a couple of extra charges.

Hill, who lives at 411 Brookside rd., was halted by Detectives Nicholas Dobnick and Richard McLee when the officers were started to see a part of the body of the car dragging on the pavement, kicking up sparks.

Hill slid out from behind the wheel after the officers curbed him, explaining that the car had been damaged a short time before when he ran into a building. The young factory worker explained in addition to that he didn't stop right away because the brakes didn't seem to be working.

By the time the officers tested the car a few minutes later, the service brakes weren't working at all.

Hill, charged then with drunk-driving and having faulty brakes and with not having a driver's license, started to explain again.

He said the reason he didn't have a driver's license was that it was taken away from him for drunken driving a year ago. The result of this explanation was a new charge: driving after revocation of license.

At police headquarters, Hill told Dobnick and McLee he is against drunk driving tests. He said he would not take a Drunk-O-Meter test because his lawyer once told him never to agree to take such a test.

Hill then, without apparent reason, blurted: "I'd rather be in prison than on probation anyway."

Asked to explain this, Hill said he is now on probation in connection with a burglary and larceny case. As a probationer, Hill wasn't supposed to be out as late as 1 a.m., and wasn't supposed to drink. The result of the final explanation was another charge: violation of probation.

At this point, as far as the police record shows, Hill quit talking.
