PROF. HENRY BOX BROWN.—This genius, who gave entertainments in Old City Hall twenty-six years ago, appeared at Mechanics' Hall last evening in his novel entertainment. There were but few present, but the tricks performed were very cleverly done. This evening he will give the history of his escape from slavery in 1849, in a box, and he carries the box with him and has it on the stage. His little daughter will also assist, and perform several feats of sleight of hand.
