A SERMON

November 23, 1861, by Dr. Franklin D. Basset, assisted by Rev. Dr. Miller.

"The Lord shall rule over you." (Jer. xxvii. 26.)

ASSOCIATION FOR THE PUBLICATION OF THE BIBLE IN ITS OWN LANGUAGE.

The Prophecy of Deuteronomy xxvii. 12-20, read in connection with the words of the text, is the subject of this discourse, and is summed up in the moral lesson, "The Lord shall rule over you." The purpose of this discourse is to show that this prophecy is a prophecy of the Messiah, and that it is fulfilled in His personal rule as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

The text of Deuteronomy xxvii. 12-20 is as follows:

"And thou shalt write this song upon thy hearts, and shalt teach it thy children; thou shalt teach it also thy sons and thy daughters, thou shalt sing it, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, thy manservant, and thy maidservant, even within thy gates, and within thy chambers: and so shalt thou teach them, saying, Thus shall ye do unto the man that sinneth against a partner: Every man..." (Deut. xxvii. 20.)

The purpose of this sermon is to show that this prophecy is a prophecy of the Messiah, and that it is fulfilled in His personal rule as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

The sermon begins with a discussion of the text, and then moves on to discuss the meaning of the prophecy in the context of the Bible. The sermon then goes on to discuss the fulfillment of the prophecy in the person of Jesus Christ, and how it applies to the lives of believers today.

The sermon concludes with a discussion of the importance of teaching the prophecy to children, and how it can be applied to daily life. Overall, the sermon is a powerful and inspiring message about the power of the prophecy and the importance of following its teachings.
