STREET IN ANACOSTIA.

ODDSIDE SKETCHES.

Village of Anacostia and Its Historic Surroundings.

WHERE POST, PAYNE LIVED.

A Change of Scene.—The按Shifting of Anacostia. The neighboring settlement of Blagden and Fenton offer interesting views from the hills.

The tree-lined avenue leading from the village of Anacostia toward the Potomac is one of the most picturesque and inviting in Washington. It is a path of winding and shadowy beauty, where the sun's rays, filtered through the leaves, cast a dappled glow upon the earth. The houses that line the street are of various design, from the quaint old cottages to the modern mansions. Among them is the home of Post Payne, a notable figure in the history of the village.

Payne was a pioneer in the settlement of Anacostia and played an important role in the community. He was a farmer and a respected member of the local church. The house that he lived in is now a historic landmark, and it is often visited by tourists who are interested in the history of the area.

The village of Anacostia is rich in history and offers a glimpse into the past. It is a place where one can learn about the struggles and accomplishments of those who came before us. It is a place that is worth visiting and exploring.

The village of Blagden is a short distance away from Anacostia. It is a charming little town with a picturesque setting. The houses that line the streets are of various design, and they add to the charm of the town. The town is known for its historic sites and its beautiful scenery.

The village of Fenton is another interesting place to visit. It is a small town that is located near the Potomac River. The houses that line the streets are of various design, and they add to the charm of the town. The town is known for its historic sites and its beautiful scenery.

In conclusion, Anacostia is a place that is rich in history and offers a glimpse into the past. It is a place that is worth visiting and exploring. The villages of Blagden and Fenton are also worth visiting, and they are a short distance away from Anacostia. They are both charming little towns that are known for their historic sites and their beautiful scenery.